

Debutantes Bow

25 YEAR RE-REVIEW

Also last evening, Miss Jane Barnes and Miss Dora Mason Parker Howe, bowed gently at a dinner given by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. George Howe, at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel.

Joint Fete

The debutantes, a symphony in deep pink and green, received with their parents before the dinner.

Miss Barnes, tall and blond with blue eyes, wore shocking pink satin, fashioned along simple lines with which she wore a corsage of red and white striped carnations.

Her sister debutante, "Disa" as she is called by family and friends, wore a gown of heavy green taffeta to contrast her dark eyes and brunette coloring. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

Both debutantes, who will be presented at the Washington Debutante Ball on Friday night, are the second generation of their families to be presented to Washington society.

Jane's mother, the former Miss Janet White, made her debut in the 1930's when she was presented by her mother and stepfather, the late Representative from Maine and Mrs. Richard Aldrich.

Her aunt, Mrs. Samuel Spencer, also bowed here, as did her sister, Linda, five years ago.

Disa's mother is the former Miss Elizabeth ("Bussy") Parker who also made her debut here.

Disa's two older sisters, Linda and Lisa, also made their bows to Washington society.

An accomplished horsewoman, Disa is now attending Sullins College in Bristol, Va. Earlier she attended Hawthorne School and Garrison School in Garrison, Md.

Jane is attending Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y. She attended Potomac School as well as schools in Germany and Switzerland.
